8) Can you work under pressure?

The best answer to this question is “Yes”. Working well under pressure is a good strength/trait to have. But saying yes is not enough; you need to explain how you can handle pressure situation to bring the best out of it. Tell the interviewer that you work the same with pressure and without pressure.

Your answers can be:

1) Sir, I can handle pressure of work. Whenever there is pressure of work, we need to tackle it from the mental and physical stand-point. Mental stand-point would mean being in a state of relaxation and composure so that I do not feel stressed out during the course of my work and from physical stand-point; I always prioritize my job in their exact order of merit and importance so that I can dispose them off quickly and effectively.

2) I work well under pressure because I don't panic. I use the pressure to help me work more efficiently. I maintain self control and work as efficiently as possible. At times, I try to prioritize and plan as much as I can.

3) Working under pressure has always been a learning experience for me because it helps me grow. I have always worked well during deadline, and I always learned how to work more efficiently afterward.

4) Well I believe I work the same if there's pressure or not. I try and take the emotional factors and work hard regardless of down time. I always prioritize and organize my work and hence that gives me a Psychological advantage over pressure. At times whenever time becomes a constraint I put extra effort and time to meet the deadline. So pressure has nothing to do with my work.

9) What are your short term goals?

“Never simply state your Short term goal but move a step further by stating the steps you are taking to achieve them.”

Your answers can be:

1) My short term goal is to find a position where I can use the knowledge and strength I have. I want to participate in the growth and success of the company I work for.

2) I want to see myself as a software developer in your esteemed organization where by with all my skills and enhanced learning I shall be able to make valuable and meaningful contribution to your organization.

3) My short term goal is to learn everything I can about marketing. I want to be in a position where I can contribute what I've learned through education to gain some practical and real life Experience. Hence my immediate goal is to learn and become skilled in all aspects of marketing.

4) My short term goal is to become a marketing analyst. I've learned the basics of marketing during my first two years and hence I am raring to take on challenging projects.

5) My short term goal is to get into a management position. The last five years of my career I have concentrated on learning and acquiring all the managerial skills. Recently I've taken more responsibilities in management because I eventually want to become production manager. I feel I'm doing a diligent job by volunteering for extra work to gain more experience and hope to be in a management position within a year or two.

10) Why should we hire you?

The interviewer asks this question just to find out how your skills, experience and knowledge can add value to the job. Well, to answer this question you need to learn what they are looking for and then tie them with your strengths. This ensures that you are a viable fit for the position.

The more detail you give the stronger your answers will be. Try to summarize all your accomplishments and relate what makes you unique.

Your answers can be:

1) You should hire me because I'm the best person for the job. I realize that there are likely other candidates who also have the ability to do this job. Yet I bring an additional quality that makes me the best person for the job - my passion for excellence. I am passionately committed to producing truly class results.

2) I believe I'm the perfect fit for this position. I'm very detail oriented, and I organize my work and time very efficiently. But what makes me unique? If I were in your position I would hire myself because of the passion for this industry and my optimistic personality. I want to make more of an impact than just doing my job. I don't want to blend in with the company; I would rather want my addition to improve it.

3) There are two reasons I should be hired. Firstly, my qualifications match your needs perfectly. Secondly I'm excited and passionate about this industry and the position and will always give my 100%.

4) You should definitely hire me. I have a proven track record of success throughout my education. My education graph always kept roaring with time. This position requires someone who has the ability to solve problems quickly and who can logically add value to the job. I believe my skills and abilities matches perfectly with the requirement and what makes me the unique candidate is my passion towards my work and industry. So I'm confident I'll be the best candidate for this position.

11) Where Do You See Yourself Five (5) Years From Now?

Well this is a similar question to the short term goals question but you need to answer them differently.

Your answer can be:

- 1) I see myself as a Senior Software Engineer in your esteemed organization where by with all my enhanced learning and skill, I shall be able to make up a valuable and meaningful contribution to your organization.
- 2) In five years, I want to be a senior analyst (Senior Software Engineer/Manager/Lead). I want to expertise to directly impact the company in a positive way.
- 3) Although I really enjoy working as a Software Engineer, I want to eventually become a manager. I want to continue gaining experience, and after learning many different aspects, I see myself in management.

12) What Is (Are) Your Weakness (Weaknesses)?

There's a saying –

“However small the thorn maybe it has the ability to pierce.”

Never say you are a Workaholic, a Perfectionist, etc. because it sounds negative. Try to convert these negative biased qualities into positive ones.

For Example,

In place of Workaholic you can say you are a hard worker and always willing to work for extra hours.

In place of Perfectionist, you can say you are detail oriented and like to set high standard for work.

“Try to specify your weakness as your strength and also highlight it as a benefit.”

Your answers can be:

- 1) One of my weaknesses as I perceive is occasional compromise on time for quality and perfection.
- 2) I feel I am not very detail-oriented. I'm a person that wants accomplish as much as possible. I realized this hurts quality and therefore I'm trying hard to find a balance between quality and quantity.
- 3) At times even when I need help, I try to solve my own problems instead of asking a co-worker who might know the answer. This would save me more time and I would be more efficient. I'm working on knowing when it would be beneficial to ask for help.
- 4) I've been told a few times I'm too much detail oriented. I do make it a practice of checking my work at least once or twice to make sure that it's absolutely accurate.
- 5) I believe one of my weaknesses is my impatience. Whenever I work in a team and any of the team members don't perform up to the expectation, I get impatient and annoyed. I understand if they are working hard and if their portion is difficult, but sometimes a person can't do the assignment due to incompetence and laziness. I know I can help out by explaining things to some people and encouraging lazy people by reminding them of deadlines. I know it's bad to be impatient, but I'm definitely working on it.

Q: BASED ON WHICH WEAKNESS SHOULD WE REJECT YOU?

Since I have identified my own weaknesses, you may be assured that I am constantly working on them to get them reduced day by day. And i am confident in the near future most of my weaknesses may not be there at all. So I strongly believe that you shouldn't reject me for any of my weakness.

13) IF AFTER SOMETIME YOU START DISLIKING THE JOB, WHAT WOULD YOU DO?

Well, if such situation then my first priority would be to look within myself and try to find out any shortcomings or lack of skills and techniques. If such things happen then I would try to improve and rectify myself. Still if I don't get an answer then I will speak to my seniors and colleagues to learn my mistakes so that I become more user friendly to my organization.

14) WHAT HAVE YOU LEARNT FROM YOUR FAILURES?

From my failures I have learnt to analyze myself and find out my shortcomings. Those shortcomings are the areas of future improvement for me and I have undertaken seriously to improve myself on those relevant areas. One more thing I learned is never to give up, never to feel rejected.

15) TELL US AN INCIDENT WHERE YOU HAD A PROBLEM WITH YOUR TEAM-MATE. HOW DID YOU HANDLE IT?

Once I had a problem with my team-mate in college who was my partner in my field work assignment. We had a disagreement on how to present our project report.

I explained my point of view to her and asked her for her view point. I've found that when conflict occurs, it's because of a failure to see both sides of the situation. At that point we found a compromise could be reached by incorporating both our ideas.

16) Do You Prefer To Work Alone Or As A Team Player?

When interviewer asks such questions it means they are trying to learn whether you are a team player or you like working independently. Even if you have a strong preference to work alone or with others, the best answer is to say both. If a job is mostly about working alone, there might be some team work involved.

"There's no work or job which doesn't need team work at some point of time."

The reality is that most jobs require us to work both independently and in teams. Your response to this question should show that you have been successful in both situations. Most employers want someone who can work well in a team and work well alone.

Your answers can be:

1) I would like to work in an environment where there is a blend of both. Its great working in teams while sharing and learning ideas with each other, but it's also great to sit at my own desk and work hard productively. Therefore I would like to work independently towards a team goal.

2) I believe both are two sides of the same coin. They can never be isolated. A man has to work individually and also as a team player. The value of teamwork is the emergence of new ideas and creative solutions as well as sharing of the work load. So I prefer to work both as an individual and as a team member.

3) During my school days, I was a team member of the Cricket team and the Band Group. Each required a different kind of team play and the learning experience was invaluable. But simultaneously I had to work hard individually for my School exams and other competitive exams where I need to learn and perform on my own. Hence I understand the value of both and therefore I am comfortable working on a team and independently as well.

4) I like working myself. But I love working in a team because one thing is for sure - gaining and sharing knowledge through experience. It is always said "Two heads are better than one". Working as an individual, I can apply all that I have learned throughout the career. So I believe both have their importance and both are required to be successful in any field.

5) What I have learned from the job description is: this position requires someone who can handle assignments which in turn requires great deal of independent work and research. I am equally comfortable working as a member of a team and independently. My career marks and percentage shows my individual effort. Moreover I was the captain of the winning cricket team of my school and I was adjudged the best bowler of the tournament which shows that I am an efficient team member also. So I am comfortable with both.

17) Are You Willing To Relocate Or Travel?

When the interviewer asks about your willingness to travel, it means that this position requires some traveling. If you say no, then you may not get hired because they are looking for someone who is able to travel.

It is perfectly acceptable to ask how much travel is involved.

Your answer can be:

- 1) "I am completely mobile. Well I can go to any part of the country or even abroad if situation permits."
- 2) "I have no problems with travelling, actually I love travelling."

18) What Are Your Expectations From The Job?

WHAT ARE YOU LOOKING FOR IN THIS JOB? / WHAT ARE YOUR EXPECTATIONS FROM THE JOB?

The interviewer simply wants to check out what you are expecting from the job. Never relate your answer to position, status or money associated with the job. Your answer should show that you are really determined to add value to the organization and yourself too.

Your answers can be:

- 1) I would like a job which gives me a chance to apply all that I have learned in college and enable me to grow as a professional. I would like a role which enables me to make a difference and improve my skills.
- 2) Great learning opportunities, challenging roles, rational career progression and good job satisfaction. I would also like to work for an organization that gives me an opportunity to serve the organization, the society and above all my country.
- 3) I seek three things from the job: Competence, Challenging Roles and learning opportunities. I want a position where I can apply my skills and abilities at par so that I can add some value to the organization.
- 4) I'm looking for a place to learn and a chance to improve my practicalities and thereby taking my employer to its level best by showing my fullest dedication and work strengths.

19) Are You Willing To Take Risks?

The answer to this question depends on the position and nature of the job you are applying for. But it's believed that those who are willing to take risks are positioned well than the other candidates.

Your answer can be:

1) I'm a risk taker. I keep my options open and if the reward justifies the risk, I would definitely try. I believe rewards belong only to those guys who go beyond intentions to the place of actions.

“Policy of being too cautious is the greatest risk of all.”

2) I see myself as a risk taker. But before taking any decision, I always evaluate all other options and after careful considerations I would definitely take a risk if the rewards were high enough.

“There is as much risk in doing nothing, as in doing something.”

3) I think it's important to take some risks. Going the extra mile in taking risks is worth even if failure is the result, because the experience and the growth from the risks are priceless.

“What you risk reveals what you value.”

4) I see myself as a careful risk taker. I would definitely study each and every situation and take a risk that would improve my personal and company's situation. I believe a risk is worth if the reward are high enough.

5) I'm reliable and believe in stability and guarantees. My work will be based on facts and knowledge without assumptions or guesses, So I tend to stay away from risk.

20) If Your Boss Is Taking All The Credits For Your Work, What Will You Do? - Job Interview Answers.

Even if my boss takes credit for my work, I would not mind because if I am a good worker my contribution will be definitely noticed by the organization. Secondly if I remain in the good books of my boss, I can en-cash this towards my career promotions and growth.

21) Suppose you find yourself in a deserted island. What three things you will need to survive?

Food, Water and HOPE (that one day I will definitely come out from this island).

22) How do you think you conducted or performed during this interview?

I think I have conducted myself in the best possible manner by satisfying your queries through my specific answers which I feel were logical, systematic and to the point. Through my answer my true worth as a dynamic and competent professional has come out fair and square and I am happy with my performance which would ensure my selection in this esteemed organization.

23) How mobile are you?

I am absolutely mobile. Well I can go to any part of the country or even abroad if situation permits.

24) What Will You Do If You Are Asked To Give A Bribe?

If I am asked to do so then I will feel very uncomfortable to do so just in case the company has strong core competency, best practices and a strong value system. So I strongly feel the company can do business purely on these merits and not through bribery or commissions.

- If the interviewer presses you hard to say either yes or no then you can say:

"However even if a condition comes to pay a bribe to get a good contract then I shall refer the case to my seniors for their valid suggestions upon which I can act."

25) Suppose I tell you I don't like your face? Then why should I select you?

Even if you don't like my face, you definitely would agree that I have other qualities that appealed you, for which you are now interviewing me.

"A man's face is not including of his abilities".

There's a saying

"A book is not judged by its cover but it is judged by its contents".

26) How do you deal conflicts? Or Think of a situation where you handled a conflict successfully?

This question is to judge couple of factors such as your team skills, how you handle your emotions and how well you solve a given conflict. The interviewer wants to find out, if you know how to deal with others and challenging situation.

You have to check if you have any stories to tell where you resolved the conflict. Think of differences with friends, family or others and how you are able to handle it.

Here is one story that happens quite often in college days. Let us say that you are part of a team and your class is responsible for planning and hosting a big event at college. You are given some tasks and you depend on your other team mates; so that together you all can come up with good outcome of your efforts. But your friends are not doing their part well and you are upset with it. Think how you deal with it and solve the conflict.

Sample Answer:

We hosted a big event which had multiple programs and our team was assigned to take care of receiving the guests, serving them food, beverages, giving them the right information of where and what events they can attend. My team mates were not paying attention to the tasks assigned to them and I was having hard time keeping them together. I took up the issue and gathered them together and explained the problem. I told them that by knowing and networking with the guests they may benefit from them in future in some form. So they realized the value of doing their job. Most of them have realized the mistake and together we are able to finish the task given to us.

27) Describe your ideal company, location and job? What kind of job do you like?

This is a question to understand if you are really interested in the present company you are interviewing and your view about what kind of job you like to do. If you do not express genuine enthusiasm for the job, firm, its culture, location, industry, etc. in your answer then you are giving a chance for the interviewer to eliminate you.

The reason you are attending the interview is that you like to work for that company. So make sure to understand their work culture and just use that in your answer.

Sample Answer 1:

For me an ideal company is that which helps me to enhance my skills and helps me in developing myself as a professional.

My ideal job is one which gives me satisfaction and also in which I can use my whole potential.

My ideal location is that where I can get new things to learn and where the people around me are hardworking, honest and for whom the work is the first priority.

Sample Answer 2:

This is my ideal company for which I'm interviewing for. I love to work in a company where there is enough room to use my skills without fear but simultaneously acquire new skills from team mates and the projects. I enjoy and look forward to learn something new on any given day so I can use the experience in the projects I work. As far as location is concerned I'm presently a bachelor and ready to work anywhere as long as I'm comfortable with the culture, surroundings and the work environment and growth opportunities the company provides.

Sample Answer 3:

I would like to do job in a company where i can enhance my skills and knowledge as a professional. My ideal company is like where I can get job satisfaction and use all of my potential. My ideal location is that where I have a chance to learn new things and people around me are honest to work and for whom work is the first priority.

28) Why did you apply for this job?

This is a very important question. The interviewer is trying to gauge how much interest genuinely you have to apply for this post. So try to learn about the job description from PPT (pre placement talk) or from your seniors who already work for the same company. Don't say like because your placement officer forced you to sit for the selection process or just for fun as you already got another job. And more wrong answers include good salary, biggest company in Asia etc. Try to match your skills with the job requirement. Show genuine interest in the company.

Sample Answer 1:

I checked the job description and found that the requirements are matching with what I studied at college so I felt I will be a good fit for the job and will be able to start working on company projects with confidence once the initial orientation is given about the company culture and standards.

If you are NOT a computer science graduate (electrical, electronics, mechanical engineers applying for software job etc.) the answer should be as follows:

Sample Answer 2 :

Even though I graduated from other branch (electrical or electronics or mechanical etc.) I found out that the company has projects in my domain areas (electrical, electronics, mechanical etc.) So I felt with little training in the best practices of software my domain knowledge will help me to successfully work in domain specific software projects that are why I applied for this position.

29) What is your most embarrassing moment? How did you deal with it?

HR managers feel this question helps them in understanding a candidate's ability to deal with delicate situations. The answer could be based on a personal or a professional moment but the emphasis should be on what you learnt and how you converted it into an opportunity.

Sample Answer 1:

While in the third year of my engineering I was asked to speak in an event where our Directors, professors and other eminent personalities are sitting and I was so scared to speak in front of such great audience. I felt to embarrassed and upset with myself that I decided to get rid of my stage fear from then on by practising speech in an empty room first and later with my friends as audience.

30) Who is your role model? Or who has inspired you in your life and why?

To check how alert you are this question is asked. If you grope for an answer, it seems you've never been inspired. If you ramble about your teacher you've wasted an opportunity to present qualities of great value to the company

Tip: Have a few national heroes in mind such as Infosys Mr.Narayana Murthy, Wipro Azim Permji, Tata's Ratan Tata, Sports personalities like Viswanathan Anand, Sachin Tendulkar, Sania Mirza, Father of the nation Gandhiji, or anyone how is doing a great service at the local city or schools or anyone else who has been your mentor.

Be prepared to give examples of how their words, actions or teachings have helped inspire your achievements. As always, prepare an answer which highlights qualities that would be highly valuable in the position you are seeking.

Sample Answer 1: Near my house we have a school run for orphans by a 70 years lady from United States. She provides high quality education and very hygienic food to students with love and care that I could imagine mother Teresa has come in her form. I get inspired with her dedication, love and self motivation towards poor children and learnt the value of giving back to society.

Sample Answer 2:

I was inspired by my dad. I haven't seen anyone up to now who worked so hard and still having time for his family. He never showed up and always intended to be a normal person. He is always assisting me like a friend, he used to share his experience and the mistakes he did in his life so that we won't repeat them.

And he always keeps a smile on his face and he never showed his odd behaviour to our family. He uses to spend more time with us and he cares a lot for us. He put his whole life in working and never made us to look down. My dad is the world's best father.

Sample Answer 3:

I was inspired by my mother. The way how she strive hard to make things possible was really admires me. When I was laugh she laughs, I was cry she motivates me and made me confident towards things. I never found till now any disappointment in her life even though she was in difficult situations and never lose her confidence to work and that thing is enough to achieve anything in our life. She was a good friend of mine. She shares all of her difficulties and told me how she dares to achieve them. she was such a hardworking guy and told that without hard work and without trying to achieve anything there is no meaning for our life and life means always find satisfaction from past and be proud of what we do at present and hope for the future. That makes me I was really inspired by my mother.

31) Tell me something about yourself which is not there in your Resume / CV.

This is an interesting question to test your personality. Interviewer is trying to know more about yourself apart from your academics and your extracurricular activities. i.e., your value system, your ability to work with teams, leadership skills, etc. Be prepared for this question.

How to answer:

Think about how your personality has moulded over a period of time and try to think of a few moments in your life that have had an impact on your behaviour.

For example, in your earlier days of your college, you did not like studying in groups, but during your pre final year, you realized that there are many projects which require good team work and you benefited a lot because of this.

Or initially you are a movie buff but after your scored less in a particular exam, you realized the value of time and since then you are focusing on your academics.
